About the exam:
In the Speaking exam, Part 1, you are asked a few questions in which you give personal information and opinions. Listen to the questions an examiner asked.

Strategy:
• Give interesting answers but don’t say so much that you dominate the conversation.
• Make sure your answers are quite short.

Listening to and answering questions (Part 1)
CB page 7

1 Listen to the questions an examiner asks. Match questions 1–7 to answers A–I. There are two answers you do not need to use.

A My older brother actually. I can talk to him about almost anything.
B It’s hard to say but I hope I’ll be working as a doctor. I’ve just started studying medicine.
C All kinds really. Hip hop, rock, jazz. I really like classical music too.
D I play the violin.
E Yes, a brother and a sister. My brother is three years older than me and my sister is a year younger.
F We usually go to the seaside, but this year we’re going to visit my brother in Madrid. He’s studying there.
G The people. The town itself is very beautiful with a cathedral and a wonderful square, but it’s the people that make it special.
H I was studying at school.
I English! I liked the science subjects too but English is my favourite.
Musician Bob Geldof wanted to make a difference and not just in the world of pop music. Stuart Maconie tells us how he did it.

The day after seeing a TV report about a famine in Ethiopia, pop singer Bob Geldof noticed that his wife had stuck a note on the fridge door. It read, ‘Ethiopia: everyone who visits this house from today onwards will be asked to contribute £5 for famine relief.’

The problem was that he didn’t think his own band would be able to raise enough money if they recorded a song on their own.

He asked another musician friend, Midge Ure, to help him write the music and lyrics and they then recruited forty-five of the most popular Irish and British musicians of the early eighties. Each musician in the group, which came to be known as Band Aid, sang a line of the song ‘Do they know it’s Christmas?’

The success of the song probably had more to do with the status of the performers than the quality of the music, but its release had an immediate effect on the British public. The BBC played it once an hour. The singer who was number one at the time told people to buy the Band Aid single instead of his own record. Geldof and Ure had hoped to make £70,000.

Even then not everyone was convinced that it had been such a good idea. There were criticisms of Geldof and Ure’s choice of musicians and the lyrics of the song and doubts about whether the money raised would reach its target. The journalist who had filed the report which had inspired Geldof’s wife was very suspicious of the performers’ motives. But when he returned to Ethiopia and saw eight huge planes with the Band Aid logo at the airport, he was impressed.

The food and supplies were held up because the local trucking companies would not move the goods or allow anyone else to move them. Geldof realised he had to do something to protest about this so he set about organising the Live Aid concert. Geldof not only managed to get the truck drivers to cooperate, he also started a new trend that continued over the next three decades.

The success of the event had far more benefits than just raising money for the starving. There were statements by the performers about world events and there were newspaper articles about the organisation of the event. Some even argue that there has been a negative impact.

1 You are going to read a newspaper article about musicians raising money for charity. Read the article and decide which of titles 1–3 summarises the article best.

1 Where did all the money go?
2 The concert that changed what it means to be a musician
3 The first charity concert

2 Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from sentences A–G the one which fits each gap (1–6). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

A What is far clearer is the benefits they have for the musicians themselves.
B They ended up making over a thousand times that much.
C It was recorded in just under twenty-four hours in a studio in London.
D It was this that gave Geldof the idea of recording a song for the African famine.
E In fact it was difficulties with transporting the aid once in Africa that led to the next phase of the effort and the famous Live Aid concert itself.
F The result was one of the biggest-selling singles of all time.
G Live Aid was not the first concert aimed at raising money for charity.

1 Where did all the money go?
2 The concert that changed what it means to be a musician
3 The first charity concert

A What is far clearer is the benefits they have for the musicians themselves.
B They ended up making over a thousand times that much.
C It was recorded in just under twenty-four hours in a studio in London.
D It was this that gave Geldof the idea of recording a song for the African famine.

F The result was one of the biggest-selling singles of all time.
G Live Aid was not the first concert aimed at raising money for charity.
3 Look at words 1–3 from the article in Activity 2 and cross out the word that cannot be used with it.

1 raise money/your hand/doubts/your mind
2 record a song/your answers/a dish/a message
3 file a jacket/a report/a complaint/a document

4 Choose the definition, A or B, that matches the meaning of words 1–5 in the context of the article in Activity 2.

1 stuck
   A put    B glued
2 line
   A a group of words    B a long thin mark
3 release
   A freedom    B availability
4 held up
   A stolen    B delayed
5 target
   A a board with circles that you try to hit when you are shooting    B an amount you are trying to achieve

5 Find words in the article to match definitions 1–4.

1 when a large number of people become ill or die because they do not have enough food
2 the words of a song
3 found new people to work
4 a new situation with changes or development

6 Look at sentences 1–3 from the article. Choose the sentence, A or B, that is closest in meaning to the original. Look at the article again and use the whole context to help you.

1 The success of the song probably had more to do with the status of the performers than the quality of the music.
   A The success of the song was due to the status of the performers rather than the quality of the music.
   B The success of the song was based on a combination of the status of the performers and the quality of the music.
2 They ended up making over a thousand times that much.
   A Eventually they made more than they had expected.
   B By the time it was over they had made more than they expected.
3 It can never be a bad thing to try and raise money for those in need.
   A It's always good to try to raise money.
   B It can sometimes be wrong to try to raise money.

7 Read the complete article again. Which of the opinions below do you agree with? Think of three reasons you would give for your opinions.

Concerts like Live Aid are a good thing.
Raising money to help others should be done by politicians not musicians.
Celebrities have a duty to help others.

Multiple-choice cloze (Part 1)

About the exam:
In Part 1, you read a text with eight gaps and choose the best word from four options to fit each gap. The correct word may be:
• part of a fixed phrase or collocation.
• part of a phrasal verb.
• the only word that makes sense in the sentence (e.g. a connector).
• the word that fits with the word(s) before or after the gap.

Strategy:
• Read the title and the whole text without worrying about the gaps so that you understand what it is about.
• Go through the text stopping at each gap. Read the four options.
• Check the words before and after the gap. Then choose the best option.

1 For questions 1–8, read the text below and decide which word (A, B, C or D) best fits each gap. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Music on your mind
You know the feeling – you’re listening to music and suddenly your whole (0) A mood changes from sad to happy. This mind-altering power of music is amazing, and internet music sites are using sophisticated ways of (1) B putting us in touch with new artists. Multiple matching (Part 3)

About the exam:
In the Listening paper, Part 3, you read eight statements or questions and hear five different people speaking about the same topic. You match each speaker to the appropriate statement or question. There are three extra statements or questions you do not need to use. You hear all the speakers twice.

Strategy:
• Read the instructions and the questions or statements carefully.
• Underline the key words in the statements. Then listen for these key ideas when you hear the speakers the first time.
• When you hear the speakers the second time, decide on the correct answer.
• At the end, check that you have only used each statement or question once.

1 You will hear five different people talking about a live pop concert they have been to. Choose from the list (A–H) what each speaker disliked most about the concert. Use each letter only once. There are three extra letters which you do not need to use.

A The type of music played
B The arena and the stage
C The location of the venue
D The audience participation
E The quality of the music
F The price of the tickets
G The facilities at the venue

1 Read the extracts about music and cross out the incorrect verb form in each sentence.

Throughout history, parents would/did/used to make sure their children had classical music lessons from a young age. Some parents did/didn't used to do this because they thought it was good for mental discipline. Others believed/used to believe/would believe that knowledge of important works of classical music was part of a good general education.

Classical music has regularly featured in pop culture, and has often been used as background music for movies, television programmes and advertisements. As a result many people are used to/would/have got used to regularly and often unknowingly listening to classical music. This means that people who didn’t use to/ wouldn’t/ hadn’t used to buy classical music have actually been enjoying it without realising.

Sentences 1–6 below each have a word missing. Complete the sentences with the words in the box.

Key word transformations (Part 4)

About the exam:

In the Use of English paper, Part 4, there are six unconnected sentences. For each one you complete a new sentence so that it has a similar meaning, using a word given in bold. You must not change this word.

This part tests a range of grammatical structures and vocabulary.

Strategy:

• Don’t change the key word.
• Only write between two and five words, including the given word.
• Contractions (e.g. won’t) count as two words.

1 Complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given.

Do not change the word given. You must use between two and five words, including the word given.

Here is an example (0).

0 I decided not to learn to play the piano as it seemed very difficult.

Writing
Informal email (Part 2) ➤ CB page 14

About the exam:
In Part 2 of the Writing paper you may have the opportunity to write a letter or email. You will be given part of a letter or email to reply to, and you should write 140–190 words. The letter or email may be semi-formal or informal.

Strategy:
Read the instructions and the whole task very carefully. Identify:
• who you are writing to
• why you are writing
• what you have to write about
• whether you need to use a semi-formal or informal style
You will probably need to use functions such as explaining, giving information, suggesting. Make sure you cover all the points mentioned in the email or letter in the task.

1 Look at the task and decide if statements 1–5 below are true (T) or false (F).

You have received an email from your English-speaking friend, Julia.

From: Julia
Subject: Music Club
I'm going to start a music club here! I want to play music from all over the world, and I'd like to visit your country to get ideas. When's the best time to come? What's the best way to find out what kind of music young people like? Can you recommend some local music clubs I could visit?
Reply soon,
Julia

1 You should write in a formal style.
2 Your reply should provide various kinds of information.
3 You have to ask some questions as well.
4 You can use abbreviations and smileys in your answer.
5 You should write 140–190 words.

2 Write your email for the task. You must use grammatically correct sentences with accurate spelling and punctuation in an appropriate style.

3 Match the sentences below to the functions in the box. You can use two of the functions more than once.

explaining inviting refusing an invitation stating preferences making offers making suggestions

1 What I'd rather do is go to the evening performance.
2 I'm afraid I won't be able to make it in November.
3 Maybe we could meet outside the box office at seven.
4 The thing is, the venue's a difficult place to find so it's better to go together.
5 I'm going to the gig in the park tonight – do you fancy coming along?
6 July is the best month for festivals so that would be a really good time to come.
7 Would you like me to buy the tickets?
8 Unfortunately, that's when I have some of my exams.

4 Look at the task below. Then read the email the student has written.

Identify any missing information.
Underline any sentences that are too formal.
Correct any language mistakes.

You have received this email from your English-speaking friend, Jo.

From: Jo
Subject: Next week
Hi Inga – I'm really looking forward to coming to stay with you next week. If you can't meet me at the station at 3, I'll get a taxi.
Tell me about the music festival we're going to! Do I need to bring anything special?
See you soon!
Jo

Hi Jo,
I'm looking forward to see you, too! I am sorry to inform you that I am unable to meet you at the station. I'll be in college then and I can't missing it because I've got exams soon. The other bad news is that there isn't any taxis at our station, but there is a very good bus service – every 10 minutes, and it's better because it's a lot cheaper! Get the number 18 and get off at the post office – you know how to walking to my house from there. Good news about the festival – I've got front row tickets! There are loads of great bands and we'll have a lot of fun. It's in the local football stadium, so there'll be lots of people there.
That's all for now – see you next week.
Yours sincerely
Inga

1 You are going to read an article about singing and what it means to people. Read the article quickly and decide if the following statement is true or false.

All the people involved with Rock Choir are non-professionals.

2 Read the article again. For questions 1–6, choose the answer (A, B, C or D) which you think fits best according to the text.

1 What has Rock Choir meant for Nicholas Williamson?
   A It has allowed him to fulfil an ambition.
   B It has given him self-confidence.
   C It has given him and his girlfriend a chance to do something together.
   D It has made him aware of his musical ability.

2 Why did Caroline Redman Lusher decide to start Rock Choir?
   A She found it hard to make any money as a musician.
   B She was tired of teaching people who were not very talented.
   C She realised how much people enjoyed singing.
   D She knew this was what her parents wanted her to do.

3 Why do people like being in Rock Choir?
   A They meet people from many different walks of life.
   B There are always people of their own age in the choir.
   C No one judges the members' singing ability.
   D There are no members who can't sing in tune.

4 What does 'so' in line 36 refer to?
   A running Rock Choir
   B recruiting other instructors
   C being the only instructor
   D being in demand

5 In what way has Stef Conner benefited from being a Rock Choir instructor?
   A She has met new people.
   B She has learnt to compose pop songs.
   C She has been able to pay for her studies.
   D She has found an outlet for her personality.

6 How does Caroline Lusher see the future of Rock Choir?
   A She wants it to become even bigger.
   B She wants to fulfil members' aspirations.
   C She wants to set clear limits and not expand too quickly.
   D She wants to attract more publicity.

About the exam:
In the Reading paper, Part 5, you read a text and choose between four alternatives to answer questions. Only one of the alternatives is correct.

Strategy:
• Read the title, any subheadings and the text through quickly to get a general idea.
• Look at the questions and cover the options with your hand or a piece of paper. Try to answer the questions.
• Underline the parts of the text that support your answers.
• For each question, choose the alternative that is closest to your answer.
• Make sure you have reasons, such as the following, for rejecting the other alternatives:
  This might be true, but the text doesn't say it.
  The text says the opposite.
  The text says this, but it is not relevant to the question.
They will rock you: the rise of Rock Choir

With 7,500 members, Rock Choir has filled Wembley, signed a record deal and is now the subject of a TV show. Alice-Azania Jarvis meets the woman behind it.

Nicholas Williamson had never done anything like it. ‘I’ve always liked music, but I’d never taken any opportunities,’ explains the twenty-year-old student. ‘I wasn’t very confident.’ But when his mother joined a local choir and his girlfriend expressed interest in doing the same, he decided to give it a go. Before long, the pair had signed up as members of Rock Choir, Glasgow City Centre. ‘I wanted to be part of something big – and now I am.’

Rock Choir is, by all accounts, ‘something big’. With 7,500 members nationwide, the choir has signed a three-album record deal and in May, filled out Wembley Arena to give a special performance to 3,500 spectators.

The whole thing is the brainchild of Caroline Redman Lusher. A professional singer from the age of fifteen, she studied contemporary music at Salford University before spending four years as a member of a band, entertaining guests at a top London hotel. ‘I was lucky to make a living for so long,’ she reflects. Eventually, though, she gave it up and took up a post as a teacher.

It was while she was teaching performing arts and music that the Rock Choir model began to take shape. ‘I had all these students who wanted to sing, but hadn’t necessarily had any training; it was about bridging the gap between amateur and professional.’ What began as a small gathering of about twenty quickly swelled to a far more challenging 170. ‘Before long, I had the mums and dads begging for their own version – that’s when I realised that there was a market amongst the general public.’

And so it was that, in 2005, Lusher quit her job, borrowed £1,000 from her family and pinned a poster up in her local coffee shop. ‘I was hoping for twenty people,’ she says, ‘but I had all these students who wanted to sing, and didn’t necessarily have any training; it was about bridging the gap between amateur and professional.’

For the following three years, Lusher remained the only teacher at Rock Choir, but eventually demand became too much and she had to recruit other instructors. Doing so was a risk since her charisma accounts for much of Rock Choir’s success. ‘She is energetic, enthusiastic and imaginative, playing the piano and calling out instructions into her microphone headsets to choir members who learn on the repetition. Her teaching style combines professionalism with accessibility. Imitating it is certainly not easy.

Stef Conner had never heard of Rock Choir until she applied to be an instructor for a new group in Yorkshire. ‘I was studying for a PhD in classical composition and I needed a job that I could do while I was studying.’ With only a limited knowledge of pop music, working with the new style was a challenge for Stef – but one that has paid off. ‘I spend a lot of time in isolation, composing. Rock Choir has opened up a whole new world to me: a new style of music, but also a place where I can go and be an extrovert.’

Williamson feels the same way: ‘You’re part of a team having fun,’ he reflects.

It’s precisely this sort of experience – among both teachers and pupils – that accounts for the choir’s rapid success. May’s appearance at Wembley was typical of Rock Choir: over the years, it’s pulled off a host of similar stunts – from flash mobs to Guinness World Records. The next project will be even bigger and better, says Lusher. ‘One day I’d love to perform at the Royal Variety Show,’ she says, ‘and there’s been some talk of the Olympics too. Ultimately, it’s about what the members can say they’ve done. The sky’s the limit.’

Listening
Sentence completion (Part 2) ▶ CB page 31

About the exam:
In the Listening paper, Part 2, you complete sentences with between one and four words. You must write the exact words you hear and the sentences come in the same order as on the recording.

Strategy:
• Read the instructions carefully and make sure you understand the context and who is speaking.
• Read the sentences and try to guess what kind of information you need to write, e.g. a job, a time, a month, and what part of speech it is.
• Listen and complete the sentences. If you miss an answer the first time, go on to the next sentence. You can complete any missed sentences when you listen for the second time.
• Check that your answers are grammatically correct and that you have not made any spelling mistakes.

1 You will hear a young naturalist called Steve Barnes talking to a group of students about his work and why it matters so much to him. For questions 1–10, listen and complete the sentences, using a word, a number or a short phrase.

Steve first became interested in animals because he lived on a ______________ as a child.

Steve enjoyed collecting the ______________ after school.

Steve likes going ______________ and rock-climbing in his spare time.

Steve uses the word ______________ to describe the natural world he loves.

According to Steve, ______________ is the most important message of the programmes he makes.

Steve wants children to have a sense of ______________ with his programmes.

Steve gives the example of a time he was injured by falling over a ______________ to show how spontaneous his programmes are.

Steve is pleased with the way his programmes have made children more aware of ways in which changes in ______________ affect the natural world.

Some experts say that ______________ and media have a negative effect on children's connection with the natural world.

Steve feels proud of discovering the biggest species of ______________ on one of his expeditions.

1 Complete quiz questions 1–6 with the comparative or superlative form of the adjectives in brackets.

About the exam:
In the Speaking paper, Part 2, you have to compare two photographs and say something about them, according to the examiner’s instructions.

Strategy:
Listen carefully to the examiner’s instructions. If you are not sure what you are supposed to do, ask for clarification. Say something like: ‘Excuse me. Could you explain again what I’m supposed to do?’

1 Listen to the examiner giving a student some instructions and the student’s response. Does she do what the examiner asks her to do?

2 The answers (A–F) to the questions in Activity 1 contain mistakes with comparative and superlative forms. Correct the mistakes and match the answers with the questions.

A Fewest than two or three crystals of painite, which is said to be the rarest, are found each year.
B Switzerland, but my country, Australia, is much worser than I thought.
C Yuma in Arizona. The sun shines for more that 90 percent of the time.
D In Korea students get by far the high scores in maths tests but they’re not as better at some other subjects.
E France has the more tourist visitors, but China is getting more and more popular.
F London, though they are trying to get lesser people to drive their cars in the centre of the city.

2 Underline the correct alternatives to complete the dialogue.

A: What do you like (1) more/most about the place you come from?

These photographs are similar because they both show groups of people but they are (1) very different/more different in other ways. The first photograph shows people on a beach, (2) although/whereas the people in the second photograph are probably in a city or town. In the first photograph, the people look (3) as though/like environmental activists protesting about some kind of problem. (4) Although/Whereas the people have signs, they look (5) more relaxed/most relaxed than the people in the other picture. In the second photograph, the people seem to be watching something happening in front of them. Most of them (6) look/look like excited so I think they might be watching a football match. Most of the people (7) look as if/look they are really upset about whatever has just happened, (8) while/and one man is clapping. Perhaps the other team has just scored a goal.

A: You like it/have the best place to live in the world, in my opinion.
Writing
Article (Part 2)  ► CB page 34

About the exam:
In Part 2 of the Writing paper, you choose from three options. One of these may be an article. The purpose of an article is to interest and engage the reader.

Strategy:
• Read the task carefully to identify what you must include in your article.
• Think of ways of interesting the reader, e.g. colourful language, rhetorical questions.
• Think of an interesting and memorable introduction and conclusion.

1 Read the task and then look at the ideas below that some students have had for their articles. Match activities 1–7 with the reasons they gave A–G.

You see this advertisement on an English language website.

An activity I would never give up!
What is the best activity you do? Why is it important to you? Why wouldn’t you want to give it up?
Write us an article answering these questions.
We will put the best article on our website.

Write your article. Write 140–190 words.

Activities
1 I know it sounds strange but I think I will go on studying throughout my life.
2 Something I would never give up is visiting my grandparents.
3 I’ve been meditation for about three years now and I could never do without it.
4 I would never give up playing tennis at our local club.
5 I just couldn’t live without playing the guitar.
6 It doesn’t matter how old I get, I will never stop surfing.
7 Working as a volunteer is more important to me than anything else I do.

Reasons
A The exhilaration you feel out there on your board is just incredible.
B There’s always something new to learn.
C It helps me cope with stress and has really improved my concentration.
D I make new friends, meet old ones and it certainly keeps me fit.
E I love being able to make music for myself and for my friends.
F I know I’m using my time to make a difference and that’s what matters.
G It really means a lot to them to see my cousins and me every weekend.

2 Look at the titles and opening paragraphs below. Which one is better?

A Something I would never give up: riding my quad bike
I do a lot of different activities but the one I like most is riding my quad bike. I’ve only had the bike for a couple of months but I enjoy it so much, I don’t think I will ever give it up. It is very important to me.

B Life just wouldn’t be the same
I enjoy a lot of the things I do but if you asked me if there was one activity I liked more than the others, my answer would have to be singing in a rock band. I honestly don’t think I could ever willingly give it up. Let me tell you why.

3 Look at the conclusions to two more articles. Which one is better?

A That is why I would never give up such an important activity. You should try it too. It’s very good for you.
B So, whatever people say, however old I get, whatever happens to me, I don’t think I would ever give up doing martial arts. It’s what keeps my body and soul together.

Food, glorious food

These days it’s very hard to get people to agree (0) on anything. But there’s one thing we can all accept – people like food! However, what makes good food is (1) universal concept – something considered repulsive in one part of the world is a delicious lunch in another. For example, many of us (2) been brought up to believe that insects are for swatting rather (3) eating, but in fact (4) are an important part of the diet in many places and provide a valuable source of protein. Perhaps the problem really is that we have become too unadventurous – we are now so (5) to vacuum-packed, tasteless ready-made meals that we are unwilling (6) try anything unusual. Yet many less obvious combinations of food can change our tastes – simple touches (7) combining carrots with sugar enhances their flavour and how about trying strawberries with a bit (8) pepper? There’s food out there for everyone and if you look hard enough you are sure to find something you love.

Think teenagers, think couch potatoes eating pizzas out of the box or munching 99p burgers? Think again because there’s a new teenager in town and he’s on a chocolate-coated mission! Louis Barnett runs a rapidly-growing chocolate empire which counts among its customers the British supermarket chains Waitrose and Sainsbury’s, as well as upmarket department stores in London, New York and as far away as Moscow. All this and Louis is only eighteen.

But things weren’t always that easy. Despite an IQ of 132, Louis dropped out of school when he was only eleven, frustrated and disheartened. ‘It was terribly difficult for him,’ his mother Mary explains. ‘His handwriting was really bad and he struggled with spelling.’ The problem was that Louis was, in his own words, ‘dyslexic, dyspraxic and dyscalculic’. Nothing the school system had to offer made any sense to him.

So, with the help of his parents and a specialised tutor, Louis set about a vocational-based, home-study programme concentrating on the thing that he loved most: chocolate. ‘I’d always been intrigued by it,’ says Louis, who bought his first Belgian chocolates with his own pocket money when he was only nine. By the time he was thirteen he had already created his own line of specialist chocolates, a sample of which he sent to Waitrose head office.

‘It was slightly bizarre,’ admits Waitrose chocolate buyer, Greg Sehringer. ‘One day a package arrived in reception addressed to the confectionary buyer. It spent a day or so in the post room before finding its way to me but as soon as I saw the product, I thought it was great. So we arranged to meet Louis and he arrived here a few days later – with his parents. We didn’t expect that.’

The product Louis sent to Waitrose was a box made of chocolate. ‘One Christmas I decided to make some chocolates for my family and friends to send as presents but when I looked into packaging I found that it was more expensive than the chocolate inside. So I thought, ‘Why not make a chocolate box to put the chocolates in?’

He then gained a qualification in chocolate making from the prestigious Zurich-based Callebaut Academy, the youngest person ever to do so. They in fact sponsored the rest of his chocolate-making education. His grandparents also helped out, lending him the money for a special chocolate temperature-regulating machine. Once he had that, Louis was off and running. By the age of sixteen he was selling chocolates to luxury department stores in both the UK and the USA. His company, called Chokolit because this is how Louis as a dyslexic spells chocolate, was very much on the map.

Louis calls himself an ethical chocolatier and includes pictures of endangered species on the packaging of his new range of palm oil-free chocolate bars, a percentage of the sales of which go to animal charities. Waitrose ordered 100,000 boxes of the bars in 2007 and Louis then had to move production from his parents’ garage to a factory in the north of England. Louis still lives with his parents, both of whom work for his business, as does his girlfriend Sally, who is his PA. There have been a few problems finding the right staff, though, because some people are reluctant to take orders from a teenager.

As for dealing with the interest from the press and becoming a chocolate maker to the rich and famous, Louis is undaunted. ‘What we’ve done so far is monumental,’ he says, ‘but I don’t want to lose control of the business.’ In fact, Louis is already thinking about how he can use the attention he is getting to encourage young people to get into cooking.
1 Why did Louis Barnett leave school?
   A He wanted to try something new.
   B The teachers didn't understand him.
   C He had special problems.
   D He kept failing spelling tests.

   B That they would actually meet Louis.
   C That Louis would be with his parents.
   D That Louis would arrive late.
4 What does the phrase off and running in line 48 mean?
   A trying to escape
   B competing in a race
   C moving quickly
   D progressing well
5 Why did Louis stop making his chocolates in his parents' garage?
   A The demand for his chocolates had grown.
   B He wanted to make chocolates using ethical principles.
   C He found it difficult to work with his parents.
   D He wanted to move in with his girlfriend.
6 How does Louis feel about his company?
   A He is proud of it but would hate anyone else to run it.
   B He would like to specialise in making chocolates for celebrities.
   C He is worried that it might be getting out of control.
   D He thinks it is not getting enough attention.

Speaking

Long turn (Part 2) ▶ CB page 53
comparing and giving a reaction

About the exam:
In the Speaking exam, Part 2, each candidate is asked to compare two photographs and give a reaction of some kind in response to the examiner’s question. The candidate talks about the photographs for about a minute, pointing out the similarities and differences between the photographs, and then answers the examiner’s question.

Strategy:
Make sure you leave enough time to give your reaction after comparing the photographs.

1 Listen to the instruction an examiner gives to a candidate. What does the examiner ask the candidate to do?

1 Compare the pictures and say how the people are feeling about being together.
2 Compare the photographs and say what the people are enjoying about eating in different places.
2 Complete the candidate’s comparison of the two photographs with the words in the box.

Both these photographs are of people eating together. The first one (1) ________ a barbecue. There are quite a lot of people so I think there must be more than one family involved. It (2) ________ to be somewhere like the USA. There are a lot of trees in the background, and green grass. Everyone (3) ________ as if they are really enjoying the barbecue and the pleasant landscape. There is a woman who is giving out food to the rest of her family and they are all smiling and laughing. There are baskets full of food and jugs of juice in the foreground of the photo. In the background I can (4) ________ men who are standing around the barbecue, so I think they are still cooking. They’re (5) ________ just about to eat. The other photograph is (6) ________ a family having breakfast. It’s (7) ________ to the first photograph in that everyone looks very happy and as (8) ________ they are really enjoying being together. The older child is sitting down at a table and the younger child is sitting on her mother’s lap. The mother and father are (9) ________, looking at their children, who are eating fruit, breakfast cereal and biscuits, and drinking milk. They are all sitting at one end of the table, which seems to make it easier for everyone to talk together and it’s (10) ________ that they are really enjoying that.

3 Listen to a candidate giving her response to the photographs and complete her comments.

I think we all like joining our friends and family for meals (1) ________ in the photos. It’s particularly enjoyable to eat in the open air but even an ordinary meal (2) ________ in the kitchen is a good time for the family to get together and talk before the beginning of a busy working day or at the weekends (3) ________.

Writing

Review (Part 2) ➤ CB page 54

About the exam:
In Part 2 of the Writing paper, you choose between various options. One of these options might be a review.

Strategy:
• Balance your review by writing positive and negative comments on whatever you are asked to review.
• You can organise your comments into separate paragraphs (one for positive comments and one for negative) or combine them into one paragraph using linking words.

1 Look at this task and the points two students (A and B) plan to include. Which student’s ideas will make a more interesting answer?

You have been given this task by your English teacher. Can you be our café critic?

Have you tried a new café near your school recently? We’d like to know about the food, the place itself and the cost. Tell us whether you would recommend it to other students.
The best review will be published in the school newsletter.

A Chill Out Natural Burger Bar
- serves burgers and fruit juices
- open every day
- prices vary
- only opened about six months ago
- not popular with all my friends
- cheap lunch

B Gloria’s Global Salad Bar
- wide range of healthy options with vegetarian options
- bright colours and posters on the walls
- very busy so there can be queues – but worth it
- friendly helpful staff
- rather loud music
- some meals expensive, but there are cheap sandwiches and interesting salads

2 A review should include positive and negative points, although it should always give a final opinion. Which points in list B are negative?

3 Write your own review of Gloria’s Salad Bar, using the points given. Decide whether your review is generally positive, and whether you would recommend the bar. Write 140–190 words.
